

Craig Statucki started as the Director of the Office of Career Readiness, Adult Learning, and Education Options, Nevada, in March 2020. He had been a CTE educator in the Clark County School District (CCSD) since 2001 and most recently served as an assistant principal at East Career and Technical Academy. Craig received a Bachelor's degree in Economics and a Master's Degree in Business Administration from UNLV. He earned his teaching credentials through the University of Phoenix and his administrative credentials through Sierra Nevada College. Craig has served as the executive director for the Nevada Association of Career and Technical Education (ACTE) since 2015 and has served on several committees at the regional and national level with ACTE.